Edmonton Bulletin: After the high ground taken by the Regina Leader last year on the question of responsible government, it was a surprise to many to find it this year defending the Governor in the arbitary course he pursued with his advisory board and severely criticizing the board for not allowing themselves to be the tools of his honor.

From the first indication of trouble between the governor and his advisors it has been constantly defending the former and blaming the latter. The Journal claims to have discovered the reason of the change of tune. It says that one of the differences between the governor and the board was over the government printing, the former persisting that it should be done at the Leader office. Consequently Mr. Haultain who was the head of the board and who the Leader thought was "the born statesman," now has an extraordinary lack of judgment and sense of fitness.
A little government patronage did it all.

HENRY M. STANLEY

THE CONGO FREE STATE.

MAP OF CONGO FREE STATE.

"When I finally reached Europe, in January, 1878," says Stanley, "slowly recovering from the effects of famine and fatigue endured on that long journey, little did I imagine that before the close of the year I should be preparing for another expedition for the banks of that river on which we had suffered so greatly; but at Mariouville, as I descended from the express just arrived from Italy, two commissioners from the king of the Belgians, Leopold II, met me, and before I was two hours older I was made aware that King Leopold intended to undertake to do something substantial in Africa, and that I was expected to assist him."

Stanley was invited to Brussels. A corporation entitled the Committee for Study of the Upper Congo was organized with an immediate subscription of $10,000, which was intended to be used in opening that portion of the country through which flowed the upper Congo to the ocean of the world. The society later was merged with and became known as the African International association. This association had a definite object, the erection of a line of stations from the Atlantic coast to the interior, principally for the benefit of travelers.

In August, 1879, Stanley was at the mouth of the Congo with his flotilla, which had been built for him in England. There were six boats, all driven by steam, the largest of which was the La Belgique, 65 feet long and 11 feet beam. The En Avant and Royal, respectively 42 and 30 feet long, were used especially on the expedition on the river. The smallest of the boats was a row launch, 24 feet long, called La Jeune Africaine.

On the 21st of August the flotilla started up the river, and on the 26th, of September, established the first station at Vivi. From Vivi, where begin the lower rapids, to Bangala above Yellala falls, a distance of fifty-two miles, Stanley was obliged to build a road over which to haul his loads. A large force of natives were hired, and when the work was completed the boilers and machinery of the Royal and En Avant were taken out of the boats and the whole transported in parts to Bangala. There the parts were again put together, and his boat on the long stretch of navigable water between Bangala and Mariouville. Up the river the party proceeded, the boats wading the dreary crocodiles "with the strange clanking of public wheeled on the plain of mire."

On the 1st of May, when some 140 miles above Vivi, Stanley was prostrated by the fever. He began by taking doses of twenty grains of quinine. On the fourteenth day he was so weak that he could not sit up in bed without support. "After the medicine," he says, "which had now risen to fifty grains of quinine, had been taken, my head would be laid on the pillow, but the third day I began to feel better. The fever like a bad beating of a drum, until, losing consciousness, I was oblivious to my pains and protracted infirmity."

On the 21st of May his sickness revealed a crisis, and a presentiment came to him that he should die. He sent one of his body servants to call up the people that he might say good-by, while the other weighed out a terrible dose, sixty grains of quinine.

"Like lightning the potent medicine courses through my veins. I feel its overpowering influence stealing over my listless senses, and I beg Dualla to hasten up the people before it is too late."

"In a short time there is a rush of men's feet along the bank. The walls of the tent are lifted up. I can see bright yet cold sunshine on the semi-circular rows of seated figures around me. My European comrades advance to the foot of the bed, and I struggle hard to recall my friends to their senses, and advise them what they should do when all would be over. My thoughts seemed to be attracted by my strong desire to say something intelligible and a strange, painful tearing over a hollowed green canvas where which drew nearer and nearer to me, while in the far distance there burned a great white light, whose bright glow attracted my gaze as the mouth of the river attracted my attention on the silent and expectant through. Again and yet again I strove strenuously to utter the words that my lips would not frame.

"Look look on me, Albert," I cried. "Do not move. Fasten your eyes upon me that I may tell you."

"And the young sailor, whose hand clapped mine, fixed his eyes steadily on mine to enable me to conquer the oppressive drowsiness, and the sentence was at last, after many efforts, delivered clearly and intelligently, at which I felt so relieved from my dizziness that I cried out, 'I am saved!' Then suddenly a dark cloud came over me, the perception of the scene faded away, and oblivion which lasted many hours shut out the sense of things."

"When I woke the next day I found that I had lain twenty-four hours in one position, for my weakness was so great that I could not move. My back seemed to be pinned, and bedsores tormented me. But on awaking I little recked of these things. I felt a desire to eat and a repugnance to medicine. I abandoned all idea of contesting the influence of the fever further. I was ready without further care to submit to the inevitable; but I would eat, and Mabariki's astonishment was very great when I asked him for soup."

Stanley had a great deal of trouble with a powerful native named Ngalama. This negro got everything he could out of the white man by representing himself to be a great chief, and then began to threaten. He would come into Stanley's camp armed, and Stanley remonstrated without effect. Finally Ngalama, thinking to take the camp unawares, came ostentatiously with peace as usual; but it was understood by Stanley with his bright eyes that Stanley should not build a station near by, as he intended. Stanley declared that he would build the negro of his Ngalama's remonstrances. The negro strode out of the tent in a passion. "While standing near the tent door," to continue the story in Stanley's own words—"for a moment irresolute, he caught sight of the large Chinese gun, suspended to a cross bar supported by two forest poles."

STANLEY NEAR HIS TENT.

"What is this?" he asked, pointing to the gun.

"It is a felleh," I answered, solemnly.

"This young son of a gun, who was much more naive than his father, whispered to him his belief that it was a kind of bell, upon which Ngalama cried out:

"This felleh, strike that, let me hear it!"

"Oh, Ngalama, I dare not; it is the war felleh."

Ngalama, he answered impatiently. "But it is, but Mabariki, that I only hear the sound!"

"I dare not, Ngalama. It is the signal for war; it is the felleh that calls my armed men; it would be too bad."

"No, no, I feel you to strike. Strike it, Mabariki, strike that, let me hear it!"

THE EMIN BEY RELIEF EXPEDITION.

ROUTE TO EMIN BEY'S RELIEF.

Emin Bey, the governor of the equatorial provinces of Africa, who is known in Germany as Dr. Schneider, that being his family name, is a native of Austria. He was born at Oppeln in 1840, and studied medicine in Breslau, Berlin and Konigsberg. In 1869 he became a surgeon in the Turkish army. He was attached to the suite of Midhat Pasha, and when that minister lost the Sultan's favor Emin was obliged to leave Constantinople. He went to Suakin, on the Red sea, and from there made his way to Khartoum, where he met Gordon Pasha. This was in 1870. Gordon made him surgeon in chief, and found him valuable in dealing with and managing the natives. Emin was a natural linguist, and soon became conversant in several of the African dialects. He was intrusted with important missions to the kings of Uganda and Omer, and finally was sent to the equatorial provinces to be governor, with the title of "bey." He soon stopped the slave raids which had devastated the territory and succeeded in securing peace and safety to its inhabitants.

In the spring of 1892 Emin Bey went to Khartoum to consult with Gordon in relation to the war with El Mahdi. Gordon, disgusted with the ineffectual support he had received from the English government, had thrown up his command. Emin was instructed to return to his province and defend himself as best he could. Soon after he was shut off from communication with the world.

In December, 1892, Stanley was lecturing in America. He received a telegram from the king of Belgium that his presence was desired in Brussels.

On receiving this news Stanley had been informed that he was wanted to go to England, and that he was to be met by a steamer on his way to Zanzibar. There he was to meet the expedition to the relief of Emin Bey.

YOUNG FOLKS' COLUMN.

INSTRUCTIVE AND PLEASANT READING FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

Miss Florence Nightingale and Her Favorite Home in England—A Small Boy Tells in Rhyme All About His First and Last Cigar.

Miss Florence Nightingale was born in Florence, and named after that beautiful city, but her early years were passed in England, where her father owned two estates, Embley Park, in Hampshire, and Lea Hurst, in Derbyshire. Lea Hurst was the favorite residence of the family during the summer months, and it is this house which our picture, a reprint from Garden and Forest, represents. It is a stone house, not very large, which stands among woods in a place containing about 5,000 acres, and commands wonderful views of the Peak country. In the vicinity of Lea Hurst stands Willeby Hall, once the home of Arkwright, with the mill where the spinning jenny was first used, and likewise Wingfield Manor, where Mary Queen of Scots was imprisoned for nine years.

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE'S HOME AT LEA HURST.

The house at Lea Hurst is in the Elizabethan style of architecture, and the building lies, first, in its associations with a very famous and admirable woman, and then in its typical charm as an example of an English country house of a modest kind, tastefully surrounded by luxuriant plantations.

Miss Nightingale, although a lady of the education and brilliant accomplishments, early exhibited an intense devotion to the alleviation of suffering. Her untiring devotion to the wounded soldiers of the Crimean war has made her name known throughout the civilized world.

The Two Orioles.

The story of the two orioles is thus told in Examiner: They were born in a nest in the elm tree; but one day, when a rude wind shook it, they tumbled out and fell on the turf below, unhurt. Tom picked them up, and, putting them into a cage which he made, hung it in the piazza and gave them seeds to eat. But the old ladies were worried about their babies. They came and perched on the cage and flew about it, chattering to them and singing a little. By and by they flew off and came back with worms and flies to feed them. They did this day after day till the birdlings grew plump and big. I suppose the mother bird felt sad to leave them when it came time for her to go south, but they were grown up birds now.

Tom made a little well of their drinking cup. He sunk it in the bottom of the cage and built a little curb about it. Then he taught Fluffy to dip the water up, whenever he wanted a drink, by means of a little toy pulley which he had fastened to a tiny well sweep. It took Fluffy a long time to learn this lesson. Downy was not so fully educated in archaic did not like to learn Fluffy's trick for drawing water in his cup, or perhaps he found it hard to reach the water himself with his small bill when he was thirsty and the water was low; but he began to pick up the snags among the sand which Tom had strewn on the bottom of the cage and drop them carefully into the little well, one by one, till it was filled up. Which do you think was the smarter bird?

My First and Last Cigar.

It was, I fear me, a common weed. One of the old-fashioned tribe. When I was a child I was told it was called a "chimney" weed. I was a pale as a sheeted ghost. Last my penmanship. And finally came to a friendly post. In those of my first cigar.

HE THOUGHT IT WOULDN'T MAKE HIM SICK.

"You can't be a man," quoth Cousin Fred. "Till you smoke like a chimney tall!" "If I do I shall die, and then," I said, "I shall never grow up at all!" The paragon I've suffered, and all in vain. Think the rock they were a waste of far. I am wiser now, and my eye again. 'Twas my first (and my last) cigar. —Golden Days.

Set and Sit.

Discriminate between set and sit. To set means to put a place to plant, to fix. To sit means to rest on the haunches, to remain in a state of repose, to perch as a bird, etc. We set apart, set aside, set about and set down some article, or in writing. We sit on a chair, on a horse. We sit up and sit down. We set a hen, and a hen sits on eggs. We should say, therefore, "as crows as a sitting (not setting) hen."

What the Wind Brings.

Which is the wind that brings the cold? The north wind, freshly, and all the snow. And which is the wind that brings the heat? When the north begins to blow.

Which is the Wind that Brings the Heat?

The south wind, softly, and all the sun. And which is the wind that brings the rain? The east wind, Arty, and farmers know. That comes come whistling up the lane. When the east begins to blow.

Which is the Wind that Brings the Flowers?

The west wind, sweetly, and all the dew. And which is the wind that brings the frost? The north wind, harshly, and all the snow. When the north begins to blow. —Edmund Clarence Steadman.

THIRTY YEARS AGO.

Over 80 years ago there was placed upon the market a remedy designed to relieve pain and capable of either external or internal use. From the first it has had wonderful success, and has been testified that Hagyard's Yellow Oil cures rheumatism, sore throat, sprains, cramps, cuts, bruises and all pains and aches.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

The following is a resume of the laws in force regarding the receiving of newspapers. 1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered wishing to continue their subscriptions.

2. If subscribers order a discontinuance of their periodicals, the publishers may continue to send them until arrears are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect to take the periodicals from the office, to which they are directed, they are responsible till they have settled up their bill and ordered them to be continued.

4. If subscribers move to other place without informing the publisher, and the papers are sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take periodicals from the office or removing and leaving them uncollected, is a prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

6. If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice at the end of their time if they do not wish to continue taking it.

7. The publisher is obliged to send it and the subscriber will be required to send an express notice, with payment of all arrears, is sent to the publisher.

The latest postal laws are such that newspaper publishers can arrest anyone for fraud who takes a paper and refuses to pay for it. Under this law the man who allows his subscription to run along for some time unpaid, and then orders a discontinuance, or orders the postmaster to mark it "Refused," and have a postal card sent notifying the publisher, lays himself liable to arrest and fine, same as for theft.

FRIDAY, DEC. 6, 1889.

OUR MEMBER.

Mr. G. S. Davidson, the representative for this district, made a good record at the recent session of the Northwest Legislative Assembly. He was an active member of the Municipal, Prairie Fire, Immigration, Printing and Farmers Committees. He was urgent in his efforts to secure some means of protection against prairie fires, and to get an ordinance passed to provide an inexpensive means of collecting small debts. Through his efforts, assisted by others, an ordinance was passed under which accounts and notes under $100 may be sued and judgment obtained at a small cost compared with that formerly necessary. Mr. Davidson also at a great amount of trouble secured the passage of an ordinance to legalize the by-law of the municipality of Indian Head, which authorized the issue of debentures for the erection of a town hall. By the rules of the Assembly such a Bill is classed as private and requires to be advertised six months and a fee of $100. He succeeded in persuading the Assembly to suspend the rules in order to admit his Bill, thus saving the Municipality $100. As one of the majority who stood for the rights of the Assembly and country against the Lieutenant-Governor backed by the minority, Mr. Davidson distinguished himself for his firmness for the right without making himself obnoxious to those whom he opposed. He was patient and painstaking in all his work. When there were long sittings of the House he was always in his place, and had never to be called in or hunted up when required. Altogether Mr. Davidson has made a record creditable both to himself and his constituency.

We are pleased to be able to state that "The Canadian Nation," will shortly commence publication. The New Party Bulletin has been published monthly as an exponent of the principles of Canada's New Party, which has grown to such an extent that the issue of the weekly publication is deemed advisable. The issue of "The Canadian Nation" will be eagerly looked for by Canadians of advanced views.

THE POLICE COMMISSIONER.

Col. Herchmer, Commissioner of the Northwest Mounted Police, has been for some time past the victim of venomous attacks by the Regina Leader and McLeod Gazette, which have been re-echoed to some extent through the columns of a portion of the Territorial press. It will be remembered that at the beginning of the present year THE PROGRESS expressed its disapproval of the Leader's treatment of the Commissioner. We believed at that time that the passion then manifested against him would ere long spend itself and a reaction set in that would do him justice; but the hatred of the Leader and the Gazette seems to be implacable. With persistence worthy of a better purpose they have pursued Commissioner Herchmer until a certain amount of feeling has been worked up in portions of the Territories, and the Legislative Assembly at its recent session moved for an investigation of the charges. It was noticeable that Mr. Oliver, member for Edmonton, who is not a supporter of the Dominion Government, fearlessly gave the Commissioner and the Police force credit for good work done. After making enquiries on our own account THE PROGRESS took no further notice of the ravings of the papers above referred to. We then as now believed that if the charges made from the outside were true, that there were men within the force who possessed sufficient individuality to formulate them and lay them before the Department, at the same time claiming protection against the Commissioner, if he were as tyrannical as he is represented to be. As nothing of that kind had ever been done, and the public were well served by the Police, there being no failures of justice on account of neglect of their duty, the Department had nothing to investigate. Or, if the editors of the Leader and Gazette believed their own statements why did not one or both of them go before a justice of the peace or notary public and make declarations formulating their charges, transmit them to the Department, and demand an investigation. Not having done so, can they be said to have the courage of their assertions? However, as the Legislative Assembly have asked for an official inquiry into the charges no doubt his detractors will be given an opportunity of telling upon oath what they know about Commissioner Herchmer in particular and the Police force in general. We fancy it will be a somewhat different business to substantiate their statements than it was to make them. Meantime it will be the wisest and safest plan for the general public to wait the result of a proper investigation before condemning a man who may be shown to be innocent, and to keep in view the credibility of the sources from whence the charges emanate. We have no desire to be regarded as the champion of the Commissioner of police, for if we mistake not he needs none other than justice and fair play. Nor are we influenced by any political considerations. We simply recognize the fact that there is abundant evidence to show an unbiased and intelligent mind that C. L. Herchmer is an efficient officer, and that the force under his command is a credit to the country.

STANLEY TO WISMAN.

ZANZIBAR, Nov. 25.—Stanley, writing to Captain Wissman, from Mtwapa, Nov. 11th, says: "I have often wished to see you. Fate has brought us within a few days of each other, and I hope that we may be auspicious and keep you till I have a pleasant opportunity of knowing a colleague who has labored so unostentatiously and well in a similar field under the same royal patronage."

STRANGER THAN FICTION.

The Mysterious Manifestations of Pontiac County, Spoken.

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—After reading of the mysterious manifestations in the house of Geo. Duggs, at Clarendon Point, Pontiac County, Mr. Woodcock, R.C.A., of Brockville, who has devoted the greater part of the past ten years to the study and investigation of psychical phenomena, concluded to go out and see the phenomena for himself. After spending a number of days in the house, where the curious proceedings have been going on for over six weeks, Mr. Woodcock had a good opportunity to thoroughly investigate every phase of the phenomena. He declares it to be a case of the most kind being clearly a case of infestation and a work of a child by a low order of spirit and one of the most marvellous cases on record. A full statement of his investigation will be made public in a few days. Mr. Woodcock arrived at Duggs' on Friday last and left there Monday at 3 o'clock and the report given by him is very interesting. The reports given through the newspapers concerning this affair have been almost incredible, but they pale before the developments that took place before and after Mr. Woodcock's arrival. His story, which is corroborated by several residents of the neighborhood, is simply marvellous and stranger than the strangest works of fiction.

A MONTREAL BOODLER.

Barth Polder, of the Water Department, arrested three men last night.

MONTREAL, Nov. 25.—Lionel Polder, a bawler in the employ of the city water department, has absconded, and is now in New York, as learned by a telegram to a friend. The amount of his defalcation is unknown, but it will probably reach some thousands of dollars. Polder is a married man, but has been separated from his wife for the past seven years. He leaves behind him a father 90 years of age. His method seems to have been to collect say five accounts and return four, then deduct the amount of the fifth and move, keeping the amount of the fifth. Matters point plainly to some collusion between Polder and the accountant, Leprieux, who absconded last winter and is now in New York.

THE 100 MILLION DOLLAR.

New York, Nov. 25.—Only $202,378 is lacking to complete the $5,000,000 guarantee fund for the World's Fair.

FIGHTING ON THE MARCH.

STANLEY'S PROGRESS THROUGH THE DARK CONTINENT.

An Immense South Western Extension of Lake Victoria Was Discovered. It is "Major" Wissman Now—Died in their Hammocks.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The British Consul at Zanzibar telegraphs to the Foreign Office as follows: Stanley arrived at Mtwapa on the 50th day after his departure from the Victoria Nyanza, and the 188th day after leaving the Albert Nyanza. In addition to the names already telegraphed, Stanley has with him Hoffman, Emin's daughter, and Fehers Graul and Schinz of the Algerian Mission. Stanley left Nyanza on Nov. 12th, traveling toward the coast by way of Kumbia and Mtwapa. Stanley made an unexpected discovery of real value, in finding an extension of the Victoria Nyanza toward the south-west. The utmost southerly reach of the lake is now known to be 48, 48. This brings the Victoria Nyanza within 155 miles of Lake Tanganyika. The area of the extension is 25,000 square miles. According to the report received by the Foreign Office Stanley has with him 750 persons, of whom 250 are Emin's followers. There are also sixty children in the party. Stanley lost only eighteen men during the march from the Victoria Nyanza. He had four days fighting near Usukuma. The expedition is expected to arrive at Bagamoyo in a fortnight.

A CONTINUOUS BATTLE.

ZANZIBAR, Nov. 25.—Mr. Stanley in a letter to the British Consul at Zanzibar gives in addition to the news already called the following story:

Every previous expedition has seen the lighted up of the lake, driving with him, and with us now tell a different tale. Till we can place the poor things in our company on a shipboard there will be no rest for us. The work of it is that we have not the privilege of showing you at Zanzibar the full extent of our labors. No. 615.—A Clever Puzzle.
One of the cleverest puzzles that has been invented in a long time is the 1888-1889 puzzle.
1. "Why was 1888 so short?"
2. "Why is 1889 shorter?"
This is a good one to pose your sharp witted friends with.

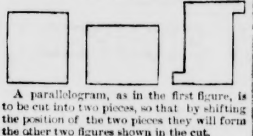

No. 616.—Double Acrostic.
My first, a blossom white as snow
With petals all of gold.
My next an overcoat will show,
For keeping out the cold.
My third, if you are in a fright,
Will overstep your cheek;
The landlady keeps my fourth in sight,
The first of every week;
My last a bird you surely know—
A near relation to the crow.
My initials, unless I'm mistaken,
Will show you a tricky wight
Who always is plotting some mischief;
My finale, his weapon of might.

No. 617.—Remarkable Rivers.
What's the river that's verdant; the river that's fine;
The river that's juicy and round;
The river that's smiling; the river that's choked;
And the one that is tracked by the hound?
What's the one that's a schoolboy; one a wild beast;
The one that joins while it divides;
What's the one that is stony; the one that is subtle;
And subtle through the grass glides?
All these rivers are found in the United States.

No. 618.—A Problem to Solve.
Place a hundred at each end, with a five in the middle,
And a one on each side of the five; then will the riddle
Solved be when you find (at least so says the ditty)
"Pertaining to a citizen," and also "to a city."

No. 619.—Easy Word Squares.
1. A journey; seldom seen; a metal; confined.
2. An animal; among; nature; a garden.
3. A fowl; thought; natural; a valley.

Six of One and Half a Dozen of the Other.
Whether marriage is a failure or not there is one thing certain, that wives are frequently such treasures to men that they would willingly "play them up in heaven!" Its quite six of one and half a dozen of the other; and the wit was right when he said the happiness of married life depends in a great measure on how you enjoy yourself. It is so!

Commencement Sermon.
Originally commencement day was the opening day of the new college year; hence the name which still exists, though "commencement" is celebrated at the end of the college year. When commencement was commenced, colleges were managed as religious bodies, so that divine services were naturally observed. At that time, too, all our colleges were managed by evangelical churches, so that the sermon was the principal part of the service. We can give no other origin for the sermon. The Dudley sermon at Harvard was preached in 1712 by the Rev. Peter Clark; we presume it was a commencement sermon.

Why He Was Hard Up.
"Poor Bob is pretty down," said young Mr. Strainer, dropping a lump of sugar into his coffee.
"But you told me a while ago that Bob's father left him a large property?" exclaimed Stumpkins.
"Yes, he did leave him a large property—
very large property."
"Then how is the dickens is Bob so hard up?"
"It was a summer hotel that his father left him."—Lowiston Journal.
